Catalogue of blocks

The catalogue contains all relevant sandstone relief blocks and fragments belonging to the decoration of Naga 200 as well as other constructional blocks mentioned in the text. The term ‘block’ is always used as label, even when only a fragment is described. The catalogue includes also the blocks documented by the Butana Expedition in 1958 (found at the end). If possible a photo of the block or a scan, sometimes only a sketch (in case of lacking other documentation), is added. The depictions are presented in an approximate ratio of size which, however, was difficult to maintain in the case of small fragments.

The catalogue entries comprise the measurements (height x width x depth in cm)¹, a general description of the block and the description of the relief.

The type of relief is indicated as ‘sunken relief’ (outer walls), ‘raised relief’ (interior walls) and ‘raised interior relief’ which indicates the internal details of sunken relief of outside walls. ‘Associated with’ denotes that other fragments or block parts fit with a catalogue entry forming a single block (marked with +). The ‘attribution’ notates to which figure the block belongs. In case of unclear attribution of a block or fragment the find spot is given.

References are given when the block was already published before.

The treatment of the blocks follows a certain typical mode. Usually the blocks are conically diminishing to the back, sometimes even resulting in a triangular shape when viewed from above. Around the relief face at the front, the first 4-5 cm along the edges on the sides and the upper or lower planes are smoothed in order to fit to the next blocks in the same layer or in the layer above or below. The flat areas especially at the sides are caused by the joint dressing (sawing) of two adjoining blocks which is described in chap. III.1.1 (cf. Riedel & Hamann 2009, 1233 f., fig. 8). The typical treatment and the conical shape apply to all blocks in the catalogue unless stated otherwise.

The saw lines appearing usually on the upper plane of the block, resulting from the joint dressing, are often combined with a depression made by a rod adjusting the position of the block. These features are likewise mentioned as they were indispensable for the localisation of the position of blocks in the next upper layer.

Ref.:

Ref.:

Block 1050

Measurements: 28 x 46 x 18 cm

Description: lower part of quadrangular relief block, eroded, multiple holes in the front surface

Associated with: fragments 253 + 242

Attribution: Pylon E, god, star frieze

Findspot: in room 202 amidst blocks demarcating a later passage into room 204

Comment: Block 1050+253+242 with star frieze also shows part of the deity's inscription. See Rilly, chap. XIII.

The findspot in 202 in the line of stones demarcating a passageway indicates, that block 1050 has been removed from its original place of dropping.

Ref.:

Block 1052

Measurements: 25 x 41 x 18 cm

Description: quadrangular relief block, left side broken off; saw line with depression on upper plane

Description relief: sunken relief; triangular feature at lower margin

Associated with:

Attribution: Pylon E, king

Findspot: in room 202 amidst blocks demarcating a later passage into room 204

Comment: Block 1052 depicts the upper tip of the lance blade which the king is holding together with the prisoners' group.

The findspot in 202 in the line of stones demarcating a passageway indicates, that block 1052 has been removed from its original place of dropping.

Ref.:

Description: heavily eroded lower part of relief block, right side broken

Description relief: raised relief; on the left a small part of a sun-disk with uraeus at its right in high relief

Associated with:

Attribution: Room 202, door to 201

Findspot: in room 202 amidst blocks demarcating a later passage into room 204

Comment: Block 1054 presumably belongs to the decoration above the door.

The findspot in 202 in the line of stones demarcating a passageway indicates, that block 1054 has been removed from its original place of dropping

Ref.:

Block 1055

Measurements: 18 x 28 x 23 cm

Description: eroded relief block, slight damages

Associated with:

Attribution: Outer west wall

Findspot: in the passage from room 201 to 202

Comment: The size of the hieroglyphs is smaller than on the pylon, the block therefore must belong to one of the deities on the outer west wall who are oriented to the left. The narrow west side of pylon W is another option but the size of the block advocates against it. The block must have been transported from its original dropping place.

Ref.:

Block 1057

Measurements: 22 x 23 x 16 cm

Description: small eroded relief block

Description relief: sunken relief; at the right (?) margin a vertical column border; probably traces of illegible Meroitic hieroglyphs

Associated with:

Attribution:

Findspot: in room 202, in front of south wall

Comment: Block 1057 must have belonged to one of the inscriptions of deities on the outer walls. See Rilly, chap. XIII.

Ref.:

Block 1062

Ref.:

Block 1063

Measurements: 24 x 36 x 16 cm

Description: eroded relief block, slightly damaged, back side rounded, saw line with depression on upper plane; orientation unclear

Description relief: raised relief; a rectangle or cartouch near the left (?) margin, an uplifted lower arm holding 2 staves

Associated with:

Attribution: Room 205 but definite attribution not established

Findspot: in room 205, in front of south wall

Comment: As the orientation of block 1063 is unclear, the depiction of an arm, staves and possible cartouche is difficult to interpret (see the discussion in chap. III.4.3 with figs. 29, 30). The height of the figure represented would be c. 130-140 cm. The block thus may have belonged to the relief decoration of room 205.

Ref.:

Block 1065

Measurements: 17 x 24 x 12 cm

Description: right upper corner of cavetto cornice block

Description relief: sunken relief; parts of 3 palm leaves

Associated with: block 1062

Description relief: raised relief; lower parts of 2 plain cartouches with lower horizontal end

Associated with:

Attribution: Room 205 but definite attribution not established

Findspot: in room 205 near SE-corner

Comment: The cartouches on block 1066 seem to be smaller than those of blocks 1008 and 1031 from room 201; the block thus may pertain to the relief decoration of room 205 (see the discussion in chap. III.4.3 with fig. 28).

Ref.:

Block 1067

Measurements: 30 x 30 x 26 cm

Description: small damaged and eroded relief block, broken in 2 parts, orientation unclear

Description relief: raised relief; on the right (?) traces of relief: rectangle (?) in the lower corner, blossom-like (?) feature in the upper corner

Associated with:

Attribution: definite attribution not established

Findspot: in room 205, in the rear part

Comment: Block 1067 is tentatively attributed to the decoration in room 202 and pertaining perhaps to the table, on which offerings (not preserved) were deposited; see the discussion in chap. IV.2.2 with figs. 44, 45.

Ref.:

Block 1068

Measurements: 24 x 33 x 21 cm

Description relief: raised relief; vertical bar of 4.5-5 cm width, broadening below, left contour not straight

Associated with:

Attribution: definite attribution not established

Findspot: in room 205, in front of west wall

Comment: Block 1069 because of its findspot is discussed of belonging to the relief decoration of room 205. The figure depicted presumably had a height of 130-140 cm, see chap. III.4.3 with fig. 31.

Ref.:

Block 1076

Measurements: 13 x 30 x 22 cm

Description: relief fragment (sketch only) from upper part of a block; guiding lines (?) on the upper plane

Description relief: unclear relief; vertical relief line

Associated with:

Attribution: definite attribution not established

Findspot: in room 201, near passage of gate A

Comment:

Ref.:

Block 1080

Measurements: 20 x 31 x 32 cm

Description: fragment of quadrangular relief block

Description relief: sunken relief; on the right several nearly vertical relief structures: on left sunken with thin raised ledge in its middle, then a raised structure followed by a sunken line

Associated with:

Attribution: definite attribution not established

Associated with:

Attribution: Room 201, south reveal of side entrance (?)

Findspot: in room 201, at side entrance

Comment: Block 1081 (like block 943) with a papyrus bush probably belonged to the decoration of one of the embrasures of the side entrance. Most likely 2 Nile-gods were once depicted there; see chap. III.4.2.11 with fig. 47.

Ref.:

Block 1082

Measurements: 15 x 22 x 27 cm

Description: fragment of relief block

Description relief: unclear relief (raised?, sketch only); broader relief structure, running obliquely

Associated with:

Attribution: Room 201, north wall-west half, king (?)

Findspot: in room 201, centre area

Comment: Block fragment 1082 probably depicts the upheld lower arm of a figure oriented left. If this identification proves right, then the block because of its findspot can be attributed to the king, see chap. III.4.1 with fig. 19.

Ref.:

Block 1083

Measurements: 23 x 33 x 44 cm

Description: eroded corner block with relief on 2 adjoining sides, left area of side a broken off

Associated with: fragment 606

Attribution: Pylon E, frieze cavetto cornice, lower layer

Findspot: in room 201

Comment: Corner block 1083+606 can probably be attributed to the back SW-corner of the eastern pylon tower (see chap. IV.1.1.6). The findspots (606 in the entrance, 1083 in room 201) speak for positioning it in the area of the entrance. The block shows on one side the falcon on box oriented right, and on the other side the falcon on box oriented left to which belongs fragment 606.

Attribution: Pylon E, narrow east side, frieze cavetto cornice, upper layer

Findspot:

Comment 1: The attribution of block 1240 with the inscription is unclear. It may belong to the goddess West IX which is done here, but could also belong to West VIII (cf. chap. III.3.1 Description West VIII and the discussion in chap. IX.5 Deified king). See also Rilly, chap. XIII.

Description relief: sunken relief; near left margin a vertical staff, on the right part of the dress with crossing feather stripes and fringed border

Associated with: perhaps fragment 1249

Attribution: Outer west wall, Khonsu West XI

Findspot:

Comment: Block rest 1248 depicts part of the deity's feather dress and the staff he is holding. It is not clear whether the fragments 1248 and 1249 belonged to a single block which would then be as high as the neighbouring block 1199.

It is not clear whether the fragments 1248 and 1249 belonged to a single block which would then be as high as the neighbouring block 1199.

Butana-blocks

Seven blocks documented by the Butana expedition in 1958 can be integrated into the relief reconstruction of Naga 200, one block seemed to be re-used from an older building; others are architectural blocks (gargoyles, a corner-block with torus molding and a cavetto cornice).¹ In situ-relief of the south wall was documented as well. The blocks are cited here by the negative-numbers of the Butana-documentation (for the current numbering cf. chap. XIV Appendix).

Measurements:

Description: relief block

Description relief: sunken relief; mid-body of a figure oriented left, with scale-patterned garment, oblique running conical feature (girdle)

Associated with:

Attribution: Pylon W, king

Findspot: in front of pylon W

Comment: Block BE E8 N belongs to the king's mid body and depicts part of his scale-patterned garment and the girdle (see chap. III.2.1 Description Pylon West, fig. 4).

Butana-block BE 24/9-10 = Naga Block 16/28 (see there)

It is identical with block 16/28 of the Naga Project, belonging to the deity on the narrow eastern side of pylon E (see chap. III.2.3, Description Pylon Narrow Sides).

Description: relief block, edges damaged, broken at right?

Description relief: sunken relief; at the left a vertical feature with rounded contour (pole), in centre a conical feature with fringes?, at right lower corner 4 fingers?

Associated with:

Attribution: Outer west wall, Khonsu West XI

Findspot:

Comment: Block BE 27/4 belongs to the figure of Khonsu/Aqedise, showing part of the front pole of the chapel and presumably part of the flagellum (?) and a hand of the deity (see chap. III.3.1

Description West wall, fig. 14).

Ref.:

Butana-block BE 27/5

Pictures: BE 27/4, BE 27/5

Measurements: c. 16 x 24 cm

Description: relief block, edges damaged

Description relief: sunken relief; hand held upright, stiff fingers

Associated with:

Attribution: definite attribution not established

Findspot: at west side of temple

Comment: The block BE 27/5 cannot be integrated into the relief decoration of Temple 200. The hand with long stiff fingers resembles a re-used block in the pylon foundation, assuming that both derive from an older building (see chap. VII.2 Re-used Blocks-Foundation).

Ref.:

Butana-block BE 27/6-7 (E7 W)

Pictures: BE 27/6-7

Measurements:

Description: 2 fragments of relief block, vertically broken (or 2 separate and adjoining small blocks)

Description relief: sunken relief; head of figure oriented right, eye and ear preserved, wig with triangular pattern, crown-band with uraeus of brow, amulet pending from uraeus

Associated with:

Attribution:

Findspot: in front of outer west wall

Comment: Two adjoining fragments/blocks (E7 W) show the upper part of a royal head. They either belong to West VI or West X (see chap. III.3.1 Description Western wall, fig. 13).

Ref.: Hintze 1959b, 183; 1960a, 377

Description relief: sunken relief; 5 oblique stalks ending in a vertical row of closed and open blossoms of papyrus at the right, at left lower corner a curved sunken area (shoulder of Isis?)

Associated with:

Attribution: Outer south wall, Isis South III

Findspot:

Comment: Block BE 27/22-23 with papyrus stalks belongs to the right side of the Chemnis scene (South III) (see chap. III.3.3 Description Southern Wall and fig. 16).

Butana-block BE 8/34-35 = Naga Block 330 (see there)

Pictures: BE 8/34-35, 8/36, 23/3-4; 26/1-3

The pictures of the Butana-expedition of block 330 of the Naga Project show a better state of the block which belongs to king East VI (see chap. III.3.2 Description Eastern Wall).

Ref.: Hintze 1959b, 183; 1960a, 377, pl. Vb; Gamer-Wallert & Zibelius 1983, 42

Butana-block BE 27/14

Pictures: BE 27/14

Measurements:

Description: damaged relief block, corners broken off, especially on left side

Associated with:

Attribution: Room 201, north wall-left half, king

Findspot:

Comment: According to the raised relief block BE 27/14 must have come from the interior of Temple 200. It shows a Royal head oriented to the left. The king with cap? and diadem band with attached uraeus from which an amulet is dropping and equipped with a stelo-form ear ring probably belonged to the left half of the North wall of room 201 (see chap. III.4.1 Description Room 201, figs. 12, 13).

Ref.:

Outer south wall, relief in situ

Pictures: BE 27/17; 27/18-19; 27/24

The photos show a trial trench at the eastern end of the outer south wall. On the wall are traces of the winged goddess South I and the king South II (see chap. III.3.3 Description Southern wall and fig. 78).

Butana-block BE 27/12-13 (E9 NW)

Pictures: BE 27/12-13

Measurements:

Description: corner block with vertical torus

Description relief: ./.

Associated with:

Attribution:

Findspot: NW-area of temple

Comment: The corner block with torus BE 27/12-13 is by its numbering (E9 NW) recorded as coming from the NW-area of the temple. It therefore could have belonged to one of the corners (NW- or SW-corner) of pylon W.

Measurements:

Description: lion-head of gargoyle

Description relief: ./.

Associated with:

Attribution:

Findspot: in NW area of temple

Comment: The lion head of a gargoyle was according to its numbering (E6 NW) found in the NW area of the temple and may have belonged to (one of) the gargoyle(s) at pylon W.

Ref.: Hintze et al. 1993, pl. 18 fig. 39

Butana-block BE 27/16

Pictures: BE 27/16

Associated with:

Attribution:

Findspot: at outer east side in front of side entrance

Comment: According to neg. BE 27/16 a gargoyle lion head was found lying in front of the side entrance belonging to one of the gargoyles of the east side. It is perhaps identical with block 314 (+329+333) of the Naga project.
